Contracts, Benefits, Practice Management for the Veterinary Profession

James Wilson, DVM, JD, Jeffrey D. Nemoy, DVM, and Alan J. Fishman, CLU, CFP

If you employ veterinarians, key support staff and practice managers, or work as associate veterinarians or independent contractors, you know how important it is to have access to expert information on practice management, compensation, fringe benefits and sample contract language specific to veterinary medicine.

Until now, there has been no comprehensive reference to help interested parties understand and construct employment relationships that include fair and equitable compensation, benefits and restrictive covenants for all the parties.

This 421-page text includes the author's experience consulting on over 600 veterinary contracts and the statistical analysis of 225 of them.

"Contracts, Benefits and Practice Management for the Veterinary Profession is a sorely-needed, easy-to-read text. It will help veterinarians better understand the fine points of employment contracts and negotiate in ways whereby both sides can come out winners."

--Bob Levoy, author of 101 Secrets of a High Performance Veterinary Practice and long-time practice management author and speaker.

"Dr. Wilson and his co-authors explain significant issues and topics in clear language, with enjoyable and worthy perspectives from various sides of veterinary practice relationships: practice owner, employee, partner, spouse, client and patient...[it] belongs on every veterinarian's desk."

--Marsha Heinke, DVM, CPA, Owen McCafferty, CP, Inc.

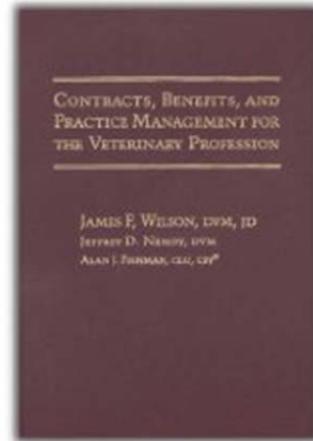

"A must-read for students, faculty, practitioners, practice managers, veterinary consultants and advisors, and people in industry who want a better understanding of the business of veterinary medicine."

--Fritz Wood, CPA, CFP of Taylor and Wood, LLC.
